

Letter from the Interim Executive Director

Greetings!,

As we all continue to navigate the challenges that COVID-19 poses to every day lives, we are reminded of our ongoing work to end the disparities that exist in the health and safety of our communities. It is not only important to acknowledge that this health crisis disproportionately affects communities of color, but that historically, many other public health issues have as well. Dismantling the structural barriers to social and public health services and supports is more crucial than ever--both in our existing work and in ending the current crisis.

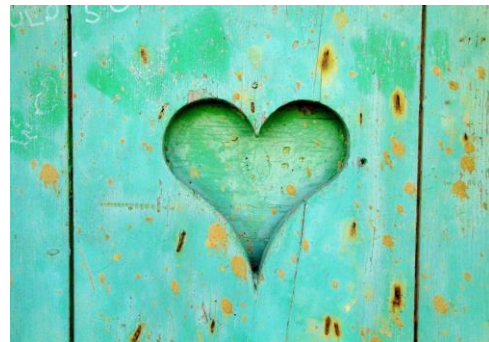

Sincerely,

Leslie Helmcamp

Expanding Horizons: Executive Order Options for Mental Health Access

This recent blog is written by Daniel Cazares, SCY Student Program Assistant on the recent executive order given by Illinois Governor J.B. Pritzker. Due to the rapid and exponential growth in COVID-19 throughout the nation - in addition to case increases in the state of Illinois - Gov. J.B. Pritzker has taken the initiative to extend Telehealth services through an executive order. The importance behind Telehealth Services is helping mitigate the current shelter-in-place order; this allows for the provision of remote services to be offered, including health care, psychiatry, mental health treatment, substance use disorder treatment, and other related services to a patient.

COVID-19 Survey

In unprecedented and uncertain times, organizations cannot lose sight of the long-term challenges facing youth and young adults. Children's Home & Aid wants to retool a previously postponed webinar to talk not only about the challenges facing youth during this crisis, but how this crisis has exposed barriers to youth development that will require longer term strategies and advocacy. To that end, they are distributing a survey to help better understand how partners have seen this crisis impact youth and youth adults. This webinar and the feedback will be the first step in developing a comprehensive, long-term advocacy agenda designed to ensure youth and young adults throughout Illinois have every opportunity to thrive.
